Foreword

The legal framework for elections requires objective drawing of electoral unit boundaries to achieve the principle of equal weight to each vote. To the greatest degree, this principle is aimed at ensuring effective representation and a translation of the will of the electorate into a representative government. It should be noted that the ideal international standards for delimitation is the equality of voting power for each vote so as to provide effective representation. Thus, boundary delimitation by its very nature is intended to produce the result of effective representation.

Indeed Article 89(1) of the Constitution of Kenya 2010 states clearly the number of constituencies that are supposed to be in place - maximum of two hundred and ninety (290). Further, the Constitution stipulates the criteria and procedures that need to be applied in the delimitation of boundaries and which notably shall be undertaken at intervals of not less than eight years and not more than twelve years. This has to be completed at least twelve months before a general election.

It is therefore worth noting that pursuant to the provisions made in the Constitution of Kenya 2010, the Independent Electoral and Boundaries Commission (IEBC) has been mandated to carry out boundary delimitation of constituencies and wards. But this does not extend into the first review of the boundaries of constituency and wards. It should be acknowledged that the Interim Independent Boundaries Review Commission (IIBRC) did the first review of boundaries. IIBRC did its work and submitted its report to the Parliamentary Committee on Justice and Legal Affairs (JLA) which prepared its report and submitted to Parliament for adoption.

According to the Fifth Schedule of the IEBC Act 2011, IEBC is mandated to ‘resolve all issues arising from the first review relating to the delimitation of boundaries of constituencies and wards and publish its final report within a period of four months of the date of its appointment. It is predetermined that the Commission shall, in addressing the issues arising out of the first review:-

- a) Use as its primary reference material, the report of the former boundaries commission on the first review as adopted by Parliament; and
- b) Use as its secondary reference material the report of the Parliamentary committee on the report of the former Boundaries Commission.

The issues arising out of the first review are -

- (a) re-distribution of such wards or administrative units in the affected constituencies as may be appropriate;
- (b) subject to the Constitution, addressing issues of new constituencies falling outside the population quota as provided for by Article 89(6) of the Constitution but at the same time ensuring that such a process shall –
 - (i) take into account the provisions of Article 89(7)(b) of the Constitution that requires progressive efforts and not instant demographic equality of all towards attaining the population quota in each constituency and ward for the purposes of the first review;
 - (ii) not be subject to new definitions of cities, urban areas and sparsely populated areas or to new population figures;
 - (iii) be subject to the use of enumerated national census figures and not projected figures.
- (c) addressing the issue of progressively advancing towards the population quota in protected constituencies in relation to neighboring constituencies where appropriate.

While recognizing the provisions of the Constitution to redefine boundaries to accommodate other interests in the electoral sphere, it is important to note that any review of constituency boundaries is political in nature and is attached to highly competitive and emotive political issues. This means that it requires clarity and clear criteria and procedure commensurate to the electoral dynamics of the country. There is need for transparency, accuracy, objectivity and patriotism in presentations anticipated towards the process of resolving issues arising from the first review. Similarly, it requires that a middle ground be struck to achieve a win-win-situation.

Thus, in line with the IEBC Act, the Commission has prepared this Preliminary Report outlining the proposed delimitation of constituencies and wards and specific geographical and demographic details and hereby avail it to the general public for a period of twenty-one days and invite representations from the public on the proposals hereto. The public presentations and recommendations will be reviewed within fourteen days after receipt and the Commission will submit a Revised Report to Parliament for deliberation. Consequently, the Commission will consider the resolutions of Parliament and prepare a Final Report for publication in the Kenya Gazette.

We must recognize that achieving the ideal and optimum population quota for our electoral units is not an instant achievement. The First Review and the exercise of addressing issues arising thereof is a process towards addressing gross disparities in the voting populations of different electoral units. It is indeed a step closer towards ensuring that the fundamental principle of the equality of the vote is attained. I therefore urge fellow Kenyans to read and understand the Preliminary Report in order to effectively engage in the process.

CHAPTER ONE

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

1.1. Introduction

The Constitution of Kenya, 2010, Article 89 gives the Independent Electoral and Boundaries Commission (IEBC) the mandate of creating and delimiting constituencies and wards. This has to be done at intervals of not less than eight and not more than twelve years. Additionally, the Constitution in Article 89 (5) spells out the criteria to be used in boundary delimitation as well as the maximum number of constituencies (Article 89 (1)). The IEBC Act, 2011 limits the IEBC to resolve issues arising from the first review and to use Interim Independent Boundaries Commission (IIBRC) Report as its primary reference material and Parliamentary Committee Report as its secondary reference material.

The delimitation of boundaries of constituencies and wards under the Constitution of Kenya Amendment Act 2008, Section 41C was a mandate of the Interim Independent Boundaries Review Commission IIBRC which was specifically responsible for:

- a) making recommendations to Parliament on delimitation of constituencies and local authority electoral units and optimal number of constituencies on the basis of equality of votes taking into account –
 - i. density of population and in particular the need to ensure adequate representation of urban and sparsely-populated rural areas;
 - ii. population trends;
 - iii. means of communication;
 - iv. geographical features and community of interest; and
 - v. community interests
- b) making recommendations to Parliament on administrative boundaries, including the fixing, reviewing and variation of boundaries of districts and other units; and
- c) the performance of such other function as may be prescribed by Parliament.

The IIBRC conducted the first review and submitted its report to the Parliamentary Departmental Committee on Justice and Legal Affairs (JLA). Following the presentations of the JLA Report to Parliament, the IIBRC Report was adopted but there were several outstanding issues raised by the Public and Members of Parliament. It is as a result of these issues that the IIBRC mandate was widely perceived as not complete, hence the requirement that IEBC addresses issues and concerns emerging from their Report.

1.2. System and Criteria in Delimitation

An appropriate system and criteria require that internationally accepted standards and procedures be used in the boundary delimitation process. The accepted standards have to take into consideration political, economic, social and other factors within a given country. Notwithstanding this, there is need for openness, accuracy, objectivity and patriotism in presentations anticipated towards the process of boundary delimitation. Based on the legal framework predetermined in the Constitution (2010) and the IEBC Act 2011, the resolution of issues arising from the first review have to be completed in the shortest time possible (120 days according to the statutory timelines). This should include proposals made to the public on the 290 Constituencies provided in the Constitution.

It is important to note that any constituency boundary review process is political in nature and is attached to highly competitive and emotive political issues. This means that, in undertaking to resolve the arising issues, it requires clarity, criteria and procedure commensurate to the electoral dynamics of the country. In the case of IEBC resolution of arising issues, the Constitution and the IEBC Act 2011 provide for the criteria and procedures to be followed. Similarly, it requires that a middle ground be reached through a win-win-situation.

1.3. Objective

The main objective of the IEBC Preliminary Report On the First Review Relating to the Delimitation of Boundaries of Constituencies and Wards (hereinafter referred to as The Preliminary Report): is to provide information to the public on outstanding issues emerging from the IIBRC Report as well as reactions from the Parliamentary Committee on JLA Report. This is aimed at eliciting debate on presentations and proposals contained in the Report. The information gathered will be analyzed and used to delimit the required constituencies as stipulated in the Constitution.

1.4. Procedure

The Preliminary Report: is based on the analysis of the outstanding issues derived from the primary and secondary reference materials as provided for in the IEBC Act, 2011. The Primary document reviewed is the IIBRC Report submitted to the Parliamentary Departmental Committee on Justice and Legal Affairs dated 27th November, 2010 while the Secondary reference materials is the Report of the Departmental Committee on Justice and Legal affairs as presented to the Parliament on 16th December, 2010. The Report included the following annexes:

- Committee minutes (JLA 1);
- Arising Issues (JLA 2);
- Draft Independent Electoral and Boundaries Commission's Bill 2010 (JLA 3);
- Presentation by the Hon. Andrew Ligale in Mombasa (JLA 4);
- Presentation on Constitution Methodology (JLA 5);
- Views of dissenting Commissioners (JLA 6);
- Draft Gazette Notice and Court Ruling by Justice Musinga JLA 7;
- Written Submissions JLA 9;

Other documents analyzed include:

- The Constitution of Kenya Amendment Act of 2008, that created and mandated IIBRC to carry out the delimitation of constituencies and ward boundaries herein referred as the review;
- The Constitution of Kenya, 2010;
- Presentation to Members of Parliament (6th December, 2010) by Professeur F.W.O Aduol;
- Delimitation of Electoral Units: A critique of the process and product of IIBRC by Sakaja Johnson;
- Independent Electoral Boundaries Commission Act, 2011;
- Delimitation of Electoral Units: Background, Outstanding Issues and Way forward. Presentation made to IEBC – 21st November, 2011 by Sakaja Johnson;
- IIBRC Public hearings Verbatim Reports;
- Memoranda presented by the Public to the IIBRC during public hearings and visits.

1.5. Boundary Delimitation In Kenya: Historical Perspective

The delimitation of boundaries of constituencies and wards is not a new phenomenon in the Kenyan history. Delimitation of boundaries was started by colonial authorities in 1962 when the Royal Commission was created to go round the country and carry out an inquiry into electoral and administrative boundaries. The Royal Commission held consultations with leaders at different levels including influential tribal leaders and chiefs.

1.5.1 An Overview of Boundary Delimitation in Kenya

The country's Constitution provided for the delimitation of constituencies so as to facilitate the conduct of elections in independent Kenya (Section 40 of the Constitution of Kenya, 1963). At that time, the determination of electoral units in Kenya started with creation of 117 Constituencies based on a clearly established principle that all constituencies contain as nearly as possible an equal number of inhabitants. The Constitution provided that no constituency was to form part or more than one administrative unit; or of both the Nairobi area and a region.

Towards the delimitation of boundaries, the Commission also took into account the following:

- (a) population density and in particular, the need to ensure adequate representation of urban and sparsely-populated rural areas;
- (b) means of communication;
- (c) geographical features;
- (d) community of interest; and
- (e) boundaries of existing administrative areas.

The Constitutional amendments of 1964 and 1966 resulted in the abolition of the seven regional assemblies and the Senate. The House of Representatives was renamed the National Assembly with 158 Parliamentary Constituencies consisting of the initial 117 plus 41 newly created constituencies following the abolition of the senate. In 1986, Parliament raised the number of constituencies from 158 to 188.

The Electoral Commission of Kenya (ECK) established in 1992, published through a Gazette Order the names and boundaries of these constituencies. In 1996, the ECK reviewed the boundaries and names of constituencies and raised the number from 188 to a maximum of 210 as provided under the previous Constitution.

Following the disputed results of the Presidential elections in 2007, a National Accord Implementation Committee (NAIC) was established. NAIC recommended a review of the electoral process in Kenya, which led to the establishment of the Independent Review Commission (IREC), popularly known as the Kriegler Commission. The IREC in turn recommended a review of the entire constitutional and legal framework in line with the political and legal aspirations of Kenyans. A major impact of the IREC recommendations was the amendment of Section 41 of the 1963 Constitution by Parliament in 2008, resulting in the disbandment of the ECK and the creation of the Interim Independent Electoral Commission-IIEC (Section 41A), and the Interim Independent Boundaries Review Commission-IBRC (Section 41B).

The Constitution of Kenya, 2010 provides for the IEBC to assume the mandate of the defunct IIBRC as the successor body.

- (a) In this regard, the IEBC has responsibility for the delimitation of constituencies and wards [Constitution of Kenya, 2010 Article 88 (4)(c)].
- (b) The IEBC Act provides for the IEBC to resolve all issues relating to the delimitation of boundaries of constituencies and wards. It further binds the Commission to employ the Report of the IIBRC as its primary reference material [Paragraphs 1 and 2(1)(a) of the Fifth Schedule of IEBC Act].
- (c) The Act also requires that the Report of the Parliamentary Committee on JLA on the former IIBRC be used by IEBC as secondary reference material in resolving issues relating to delimitation of boundaries.

In the light of the foregoing, the Report of the Parliamentary Committee on JLA sets the Agenda for the IEBC in completing the outstanding work of the IIBRC.

This Report is divided into six chapters –

- (a) Chapter One presents background information and an overview from a historical perspective on boundary delimitation in Kenya;
- (b) Chapter Two outlines the legal framework governing the delimitation of boundaries of Constituencies and wards;

- (c) Chapter Three is a review of the IIBRC boundary delimitation Report;
- (d) Chapter Four presents an analysis of public presentations, IIBRC proposals on delimitation of constituencies and emerging issues;
- (e) Chapter Five covers proposals on delimitation of county assembly wards;
- (f) Chapter Six outlines the framework on public presentations and public consultation forums, within 21 days from the date of publication of this Report.

CHAPTER TWO

LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR THE DELIMITATION OF BOUNDARIES

2.1 Introduction

Any boundary delimitation process has to be guided by a legal framework. International standards dictate that such a legal framework should determine how constituencies or the electoral units are defined and drawn. The legal framework regulating drawing of boundaries for electoral units is expected to address:

- a) The frequency of such determination;
- b) The criteria for such determination;
- c) The degree of public participation in the process;
- d) The respective roles of the legislature, judiciary and executive in the process;
- e) The ultimate authority for the final determination of the electoral units.

The 1963 Constitution of Kenya (1963) provided guidance for boundary delimitation. The Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Act 2008 mandated IIBRC to make recommendations to Parliament on the delimitation of boundaries for constituencies and local authority electoral units. The Constitution of Kenya, 2010 and the Fifth Schedule of the IEBC Act, 2011 provides the criteria for delimitation of constituencies and wards.

2.2 The Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Act, 2008

The Constitution of Kenya (Amendment Act), 2008 that established IIEC and IIBRC gave the two bodies different mandates. Whereas IIEC was mandated to reform the electoral process, the IIBRC was mandated to:-

- a) make recommendations to Parliament on the delimitation of constituencies and Local authority electoral units and the optimal number of constituencies on the basis of equality of votes;
- b) make recommendations to Parliament on administrative boundaries, including the fixing, reviewing and variation of boundaries of districts and other units; and
- c) perform such functions as may be prescribed by Parliament.

2.3 The Constitution of Kenya, 2010.

The promulgation of the Constitution of Kenya, 2010 provided for the continuation of the functions of IIBRC in accordance with terms of section 41B and 41C of the former Constitution but was restricted from determining the boundaries of counties established under the new Constitution. The Commission was to:-

- a) determine the boundaries of constituencies and wards using the Criteria mentioned in the Constitution (2010);
- b) observe the requirements of Article 89(2) of the Constitution (2010); and
- c) ensure that the first review of constituencies undertaken under the new Constitution (2010) shall not result in the loss of a constituency existing on the effective date.

2.4 Article 89 of the Constitution.

Article 89(1) of the Constitution of Kenya, 2010 sets the maximum number of constituencies at two hundred and ninety (290). Further, the Constitution stipulates the procedures that need to be applied in the delimitation of boundaries and which notably shall be undertaken at intervals of not less than eight years and not more than twelve years. This has to be completed at least twelve months before a general election.

Article 89(5) of the Constitution stipulates the criteria to be applied in the boundary delimitation process. It provides that the “boundaries of each constituency shall be such that the number of inhabitants in the constituency is as nearly as possible equal to the population quota”. The Constitution further provides that this number may be greater or lesser than the population quota only by a margin of -

- a) not more than forty per cent (40%) for cities and sparsely populated areas; and
- b) thirty percent (30%) for other areas

In determining the number of inhabitants, IEBC is expected to take into account:

- a) geographical features and urban centres;
- b) community interest, economic and cultural ties; and

- c) means of communication.

The Commission shall progressively work towards ensuring that the number of inhabitants in each constituency and ward is as nearly as possible equal to the population quota (and in so doing consult all interested parties.) (Article 89 (7)(b) and Paragraph 2(c) of the Fifth Schedule of the IEBC Act.

2.5 The Fifth Schedule of the IEBC Act, 2011

The provision regulating the completion by the IEBC of the First Review are set out in the Fifth Schedule of the Act. The IEBC is enjoined by the Act to “ resolve all the issues arising out of the first review relating to the delimitation of boundaries of constituencies and wards and publish its final report within the period of four months from the date of its appointment under this Act.” The Act lists the issues arising out of the first review as:

- a) re-distribute such wards or administrative units in the affected constituencies as may be appropriate;
- b) subject to the Constitution, addressing issues of new constituencies falling outside the population quota as provided for by Article 89(6) of the Constitution, but at the same time ensure that such a process shall –
 - (i) take into account the provisions of Article 89(7)(b) of the Constitution that requires progressive efforts and not instant demographic equality of all towards attaining the population quota in each constituency and ward for the purposes of the first review;
 - (ii) not be subject to definitions of urban areas, cities or sparsely populated areas or to population figures;
 - (iii) be subject to the use of enumerated national census figures and not projected figures.
- c) address the issues of progressively advancing towards population quota in protected constituencies in relation to neighbouring constituencies where appropriate.

In addressing the issues arising out of the first review, IEBC is restricted by the IEBC Act and Paragraph 29(1) of the Fifth Schedule to -

- a) use as its primary reference material, the report of the former boundaries commission (IIBRC) on the first review as adopted by Parliament; and
- b) use as its secondary reference material the report of the Parliamentary committee on the report of the former Boundaries Commission (IIBRC).

Pursuant to the provisions of the IEBC Act the Commission shall:

- a) prepare and publish a preliminary report outlining the proposed delimitation of boundaries of constituencies and wards, outlining specific geographical and demographical details ;
- b) avail the report to the general public for a period of twenty-one days and invite representations from the public on the proposals;
- c) review the public representations received within fourteen days after receipt of recommendations;
- d) forward the revised report to Parliament; and
- e) consider views received from the national assembly and revise accordingly before final print for publication in the Kenya Gazette.

2.6 Review of IEBC Boundaries Report

Article 89(10) of the Constitution and paragraph 4 of the Fifth Schedule of the IEBC Act, 2011 provides for any person dissatisfied with the outcome of the Final Report of the Commission on Boundaries Delimitation to apply to the High Court for review of the Commission decision.

“An application for the review of a decision made under this Article (Article 89 of the Constitution) shall be filed within thirty days of the publication of the decision in the Gazette and shall be heard and determined within three months of the date on which it is filed.”

2.7 Public Sensitization

The principle of public participation and involvement is a running thread in the Constitution and the Commission is required by the IEBC Act to observe the principle of public participation and consultation with stakeholders in its processes. Paragraph 6 of the Fifth Schedule of the IEBC Act requires the Commission to conduct public sensitization on the proposed boundaries for a period of thirty days.

CHAPTER THREE

REVIEW OF INTERIM INDEPENDENT BOUNDARIES REVIEW COMMISSION REPORT

3.1 Introduction

The IIBRC presented a report titled “Delimitation of Constituencies and Recommendations on Local Authority Electoral Units and Administrative Boundaries for Districts and other Units” addressed to the President, the Prime Minister and the Speaker of the National Assembly dated 27th November, 2010. After the Report was presented to the Parliamentary Committee on Justice and Legal Affairs and Parliament it elicited intense public debate. Some Kenyans were in support of the Report while others were opposed to some recommendations in the Report. However, not all Kenyans had a chance to read the IIBRC report and make their own views known.

3.2 Consultations with Stakeholders and the Public

From the Report it is evident that IIBRC held consultations and public hearings with stakeholders throughout the country as per its mandate. This was done between 1st February and 14th May, 2010. A total of one hundred and seventy (170) out of two hundred and ten (210) MPs attended the public hearings including the Prime Minister and the two Deputy Prime Ministers. Many Councillors and opinion leaders from all spheres of society also attended the hearings. The hearings were characterized by oral and written submissions. After 14th May 2010, the IIBRC continued to receive memoranda and held hearings with interested parties. All the leaders and senior public officials not only attended the meetings to give their views but also to listened to views of the public on boundaries delimitation. Eight (8) Provincial visits were held during which thousands of people attended. In addition, there were one hundred and six (106) public hearings in which a total of 20,726 members of the public attended. During these hearings, 2,646 persons gave oral submissions to the Commission.

3.3 Determination of Population Quota by the IIBRC

In embarking on the delimitation process IIBRC was guided by the provisions in the Constitution of Kenya 2010, Article 89 and the 2009 Census data. IIBRC calculated the population quota based on a definition provided in Article 89(12) of the Constitution (2010).

National population = 38,610,097

- a) Population Quota = $\frac{38,610,097}{290} = 133,138.26$
- b) 40% greater than population quota for cities = 186,393.6
- c) 30% greater than population quota for other areas = 173,079.4
- d) 30% less than population quota for other areas = 93,196.6
- e) 40% less than population quota for sparsely populated areas = 79,882.8

I. Nairobi Province Population = 3,138,369

$$\text{No. of constituencies for Nairobi (40\% limit)} = \frac{3,138,369}{186,393} = 16.84 = 17$$

$$\text{No. of existing constituencies} = 8$$

$$\text{No. of additional constituencies} = 17 - 8 = 9$$

II. Coast Province Population = 3,325,307

$$\text{No. of constituencies for Coast} = \frac{3,325,307}{133,138} = 24.98 = 25$$

$$\text{No. of existing constituencies} = 21$$

$$\text{No. of additional constituencies} = 25 - 21 = 4$$

III. North Eastern Province Population = 2,310,757

$$\text{No. of constituencies for North Eastern} = \frac{2,310,757}{133,138} = 17.36 = 17$$

$$\text{No. of existing constituencies} = 11$$

$$\text{No. of additional constituencies} = 17 - 11 = 6$$

IV. Eastern Province Population = 5,668,123

$$\text{No. of constituencies for Eastern} = \frac{5,668,123}{133,138} = 42.57 = 43$$

$$\text{No. of existing constituencies} = 36$$

$$\text{No. of additional constituencies} = 43 - 36 = 7$$

V. Central Province Population = 4,383,743

$$\text{No. of constituencies for Central} = \frac{4,383,743}{133,138} = 32.93 = 33$$

No. of existing constituencies = 29

$$\text{No. of additional constituencies} = 33 - 29 = 4$$

VI. Rift Valley Province Population = 10,006,805

$$\text{No. of constituencies for Rift Valley} = \frac{10,006,805}{133,138} = 75.16 = 75$$

No. of existing constituencies = 49

$$\text{No. of additional constituencies} = 75 - 49 = 26$$

VII. Western Province Population = 4,334,282

$$\text{No. of constituencies for Western} = \frac{4,334,282}{133,138} = 32.56 = 33$$

No. of existing constituencies = 24

$$\text{No. of additional constituencies} = 33 - 24 = 9$$

VIII. Nyanza Province Population = 5,442,711

$$\text{No. of constituencies for Nyanza} = \frac{5,442,711}{133,138} = 40.88 = 41$$

No. of existing constituencies = 32

$$\text{No. of additional constituencies} = 41 - 32 = 9$$

Option 1 above was then subjected to the scientific mathematical formula shown below:

1. Nairobi being the only legal city, the population of Nairobi subjected to its population quota as follows:

$$(40\% \times 133,138) + 133,138 = 186,393$$

2. Subjecting the population of Nairobi to the population quota for cities then:

$$= (3,138,369/186,393) = 17 \text{ Constituencies}$$

3. Subtracting the population of Nairobi from the national population:

$$= (38,610,097 - 3,138,369) = 35,471,728$$

4. Subtracting the 17 constituencies given to Nairobi from the 290 Constituencies:

$$= (290-17) = 273$$

5. Dividing the remaining population by remaining Constituencies

$$= (35,471,728/273) = 129,933$$

6. Subjecting the remaining provinces to this quota:

$$= \text{Province Population (X)}/129,933$$

7. This gives a total of 291 constituencies. The allocation of constituencies in the Rift Valley was reduced by 1 because of its large number of constituencies.

3.4 Data for Population for Constituencies as stipulated by IIBRC

The use of the criteria specified in the Constitution by IIBRC resulted into the following different categories of the existing 210 constituencies. These are:-

- i. Constituencies that have a population above the highest limits (186,393.6 for cities);
- ii. Constituencies that have a population below the lowest limit (79,882.8) for sparsely populated areas;
- iii. Constituencies that have a population within the limits of the lowest and highest (79,882.8 to 133,138.26) for sparsely populated areas;
- iv. Constituencies that have a population above the National population quota (133,138.26) for sparsely populated areas;
- v. Constituencies that have a population above the highest limits (173,079.4) for other areas;

- vi. Constituencies that have a population within the limits of the lowest and highest (93,196.6 to 133,138.26) for sparsely populated areas;
- vii. Lastly, constituencies that have a population below the lowest limits (93,196.6) for other areas.

CHAPTER FOUR

PUBLIC PRESENTATIONS, IIBRC PROPOSALS ON DELIMITATION OF CONSTITUENCIES AND EMERGING ISSUES

4.1 Introduction

The methodology of particular emphasis IIBRC employed in the first review relating to the delimitation of boundaries of constituencies and wards - was public hearings. This was like a tool that both facilitated consultation on its mandate and for gathering and compiling relevant information from the general public on matters of concern. The public hearings promoted advocacy, awareness-raising and building consensus on the electoral reform process. In particular, the public hearings afforded the IIBRC unrivalled opportunity on a nation-wide scale to engage in public information, civic education and receiving public views on issues related to its mandate. The objectives, procedures and principles guiding the public hearings were determined and published beforehand.

To ensure maximum benefit of the public hearings to the delivery of its mandate, IIBRC formulated a checklist of documents and materials, provided for rapportuer's briefing notes and terms of reference, and used verbatim audio-visual recordings of all the proceedings. It is through the public hearings that several issues concerning boundary delimitation were presented to IIBRC. Based on such issues and the requirements of the Constitution of Kenya 2010, IIBRC developed a Report - "Delimitation of Constituencies and Recommendations on Local Authority Electoral Units and Administrative Boundaries for Districts and other Units"- that had proposals and maps indicating 80 new constituencies. However, the proposals presented in the Report elicited several reactions from county to county.

4.2 General Views on the IIBRC Report

The delimitation process and criteria adopted by IIBRC has been subjected to debate with remarks pitted against the proposed constituencies. Some critics fault the "formula" applied and the resulting inequities. Other critics of the Report have cited lack of adequate consultation between IIBRC and the Kenyan public as the cause of their contest.

A Report from the Parliamentary Departmental Committee on Justice and Legal Affairs that was presented to parliament notably underscored several issues. Some of the issues cited included:

- (i) The determination of boundaries on the basis of three types of population quotas instead of one;
- (ii) The use of regions and provinces as units of analysis (yet not provided in the Constitution);
- (iii) The treatment of Cities and urban areas in a similar way (definition of cities not agreed on);
- (iv) The description of boundaries based on wards or sub-locations;
- (v) Inconsistency in the division of constituencies where some with large population were not split yet others with less population were split;
- (vi) The creation or alteration of boundaries without taking into account geographical features and community interests;
- (vii) There was nullification census results in eight (8) constituencies yet no clarity on their delineation was stipulated; and
- (viii) Lastly, that there was no public participation.

Latently, the argument brought forth was that the proposals on which each scenario that was used or applied in the delimiting of boundaries by IIBRC were never considered.

Some experts on demographic issues have analyzed the IIBRC Report and noted that population limits are too tight to accommodate the wide variations in constituencies. A number of inconsistencies emerge with regard to constituencies /legal limits and interpretation of the legal population limits; variations of constituencies in population and area; special consideration for sparsely populated areas and qualitative factors such as geographical features and socio-economic factors.

In arriving at its review and variation of boundaries, it appeared that the IIBRC had not undertaken consultations as required by the constitution (evidenced by the elicited intense public reaction following the gazettement of the boundaries). However, whether there was public consultation or not, there are several documented evidences that indicate that there were public hearings that took place across the country. Similarly, there are memorandums through which the public presented their suggestions and opinions.

4.3 Public Views, IIBRC Proposals on Constituency Boundaries and Emerging Issues

4.3.1 Nairobi County

Public Presentations and IIBRC Proposals on constituency boundaries

(iv) That the people also desire to retain Woodley ward in Dagoretti instead of moving it to Kibra Constituency.

In relation to Embakasi constituency, it emerged that:-

The population quota was not well used in the sub-division of the constituency. It also emerged that not all interested parties were consulted. The constituency should have been split into five constituencies using the formula of quota + maximum deviation per constituency; hence giving 186,393 people per constituency, and divide the wards as proposed by the leaders and constituents.

(ii) Emerging Issues (According to the JLA Report)

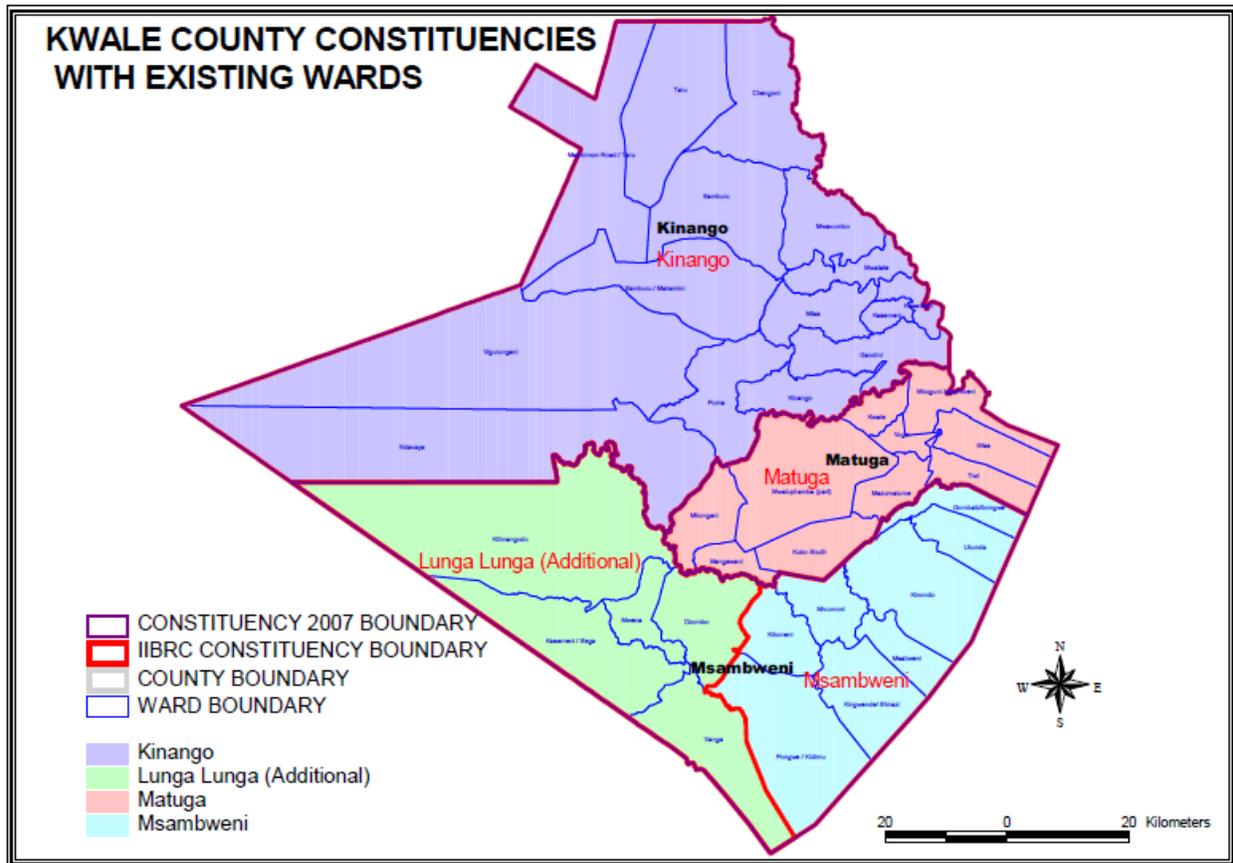

It emerged out that Mombasa County has 939,370 people but only 2 constituencies were created. Thus, the distribution of new constituencies is skewed, with less given to areas with high populations. Mombasa as part of the coast region has been marginalized and needs to be protected.

(ii) Emerging Issues (According to the JLA Report)

a) Ijara Constituency

It was observed that there was discrimination of small clans. The big clans each have a constituency while small clans have only one between them. There was concern over means of communication with poor road network in the constituency. Further there is a minority group (the Boni and Abdulla) who have no representation. It was claimed that the historical ties of Abdulla community were ignored. It was also observed that the boundary between North Eastern province and Coast province need to be addressed. And lastly, the Geographical features such as a major river running through the constituency was not considered. The population of 92,000 in an area of 11,323 sq Km. should have warranted a extra constituency.

b) Fafi Constituency

An issue was raised concerning the boundaries between Fafi and Ijara.

c) Dujis Constituency

An observation was made that IIBRC did not take into account the geographical features in the constituency. Further, the Formula used to come up with protected constituency was termed as unclear. North Eastern Province did not have a protected constituency. Commission did not use all parameters provide in Article 89 of the Constitution. It only applied the population quota.

(ii) Emerging Issues (According to the JLA Report)

a) Wajir South Constituency.

The emerging issues were: first that the means of communication in the constituency should have been considered. Second that Geographical expanse of the constituency should have been taken into account. Third, the use of projected population was disputed, and lastly, sparsely populated and urban areas were not defined by IIBRC.

b) Wajir East

It emerged that the expanse of the constituency was not considered. Second, the Census results were used, and lastly. Minority of interest was not taken into consideration.

MARSABIT COUNTY CONSTITUENCY BOUNDARY WITH EXISTING WARDS

-  County boundary
-  2007 constituency.
-  2013 constituency boundary.
-  Existing wards.

-  Laisamis
-  Moyale
-  North Horr
-  Saku

(i) Emerging Issues (According to the JLA Report)

a) Moyale

It emerged that the population figures used to delineate were unreliable. The means of communication in the region is poor and was not taken into consideration in the first review. Lastly, the population deviation used is too low for sparsely populated.

b) North Horr

The constituency is the largest in the country in terms of size but has a population of only 75,596. The means of communication should have been considered in the delimitation. It was alleged that IIBRC failed to define sparsely populated, urban areas and cities. And lastly, the use of projected population in determining boundaries was disputed since at the time of the census most people had migrated to Somalia (sic) to look for pasture.

c) Laisamis

The expansiveness of the constituency was not taken into consideration. The community of interest was not considered. There were unfair census results that were used to determine the population yet some people were not reached due to poor road network. Lastly, there are insufficient wards in Laisamis and the neighboring constituencies.

(ii) IIBRC Proposed Map for Kitui County

(ii) Emerging Issues (According to the JLA Report)

a) Kitui South

The area is vast and covers 12.544sq.km with a population of 166,050. The Means of communication are poor and this is characterized by a poor road network due to historical neglect and vastness of the area. Based on the Population Quota, the constituency should be categorized as sparsely populated since the population density is 13 people/sq km.

b) Mwingi South

The Means of communication are poor in the constituency. Consultations with all interested parties were not adequately done. A new constituency, Mwingi Central was created in the middle of Mwingi South, leaving two portions of Mwingi without a means of communication from the rest. The boundaries need to be redrawn per the residents’ views.

(ii) IIBRC Proposed Map for Makueni County

(ii) Emerging Issues (According to the JLA Report)

a) Makueni Constituency.

It emerged that Community of interest, Historical, Economical and cultural ties were not considered in dealing with Makueni Constituency proposals. The proposed boundaries for kibwezi West Constituency and the shifting of Nzauni District to Kibwezi Constituency were created against community wishes and will likely cause disharmony. The National Population Quota was not as used since Makueni with a population of 224,613 and an area of 1,571.90 sq.km, it was not split while other areas with less people were split.

(ii) Emerging Issues (According to the JLA Report)

a) Kinagop

Residents felt their presentations were ignored by IIBRC. Further, Historical ties were not considered since half of the constituency was moved to Kipipiri Constituency. , Geographical feature not put into consideration in the first review. Some areas are in Naivasha although it gets services from Kinangop.

b) Ndaragwa

The Formula used was not proper since Ndaragwa has a similar population with other constituencies such as Kipipiri but it was not given a constituency.

(iii) Emerging Issues

a) Kiharu

It was alleged that the IBBRC failed to take account of the population, communication and geographical features. Secondly, two wards were transferred to Kagemba, which is a protected constituency. The division of the wards weakened Kiharu’s economic stability and broke cultural ties. A tea factory has been moved to another constituency. The Population quota used for rural areas was not suitable and should have been used for urban areas only. The community was not consulted in moving Muraranda and Gaturi to Mathioya Constituency.

(ii) IIBRC Proposed Map for Nakuru County

(ii) Emerging Issues (According to the JLA Report)

Subukia & Rongai

- There was a mix-up in the transfer of divisions, locations and sub-location and
- Minority group interests were not considered (Ogiek)

Naivasha

- Community of interest, Historical, Economical and cultural ties not considered.
- The area is home to diverse people groups, and would benefit from better representation.
- Population quota; has high population of 226,056 and by the quota qualifies for 2 extra constituencies instead of one as proposed.

Molo

- Re-drawing of boundaries: - one sub-location, Piape, was to be moved from Rongai to Njoro constituency but this was not done.

Kuresoi

- Community of interest, Historical, Economical and cultural Ties/Minorities/Marginalization not taken into consideration.
- The minority group & marginalized in the area, the Ogiek, will be further marginalized as the new constituency, Njoro is bigger than the mother constituency, Molo, thus offering less chance of representation of this people.

Note: the wards used by IIBRC in delimitation of constituencies are the local government electoral units as per 2007.

CHAPTER FIVE

PROPOSALS ON DELIMITATIONS OF COUNTY ASSEMBLYWARDS

5.1 Introduction

The criteria for delimitation of wards is provided for in Article 89 (5) and (6) of the Constitution of Kenya, 2010). Article 89(6) provides that the number of inhabitants of a constituency or Ward may be greater or lesser than the population quota by a margin of not more than—

- (a) forty per cent for cities and sparsely populated areas; and
- (b) thirty per cent for the other areas.

Article 89(12) of the Constitution defines “population quota” by dividing the number of inhabitants of Kenya with the number of constituencies or wards, as applicable.

Article 89(3) of the Constitution of Kenya, 2010 provides that the IEBC shall review the number, names and boundaries of wards periodically. The Act requires that the Commission should resolve all issues arising from the IEBC review. Specifically, the Commission is given the following mandate as regards completion of the first review -

- (a) re-distribution of such wards or administrative units in the affected constituencies as may be appropriate;
- (b) subject to the Constitution, addressing issues of new constituencies falling outside the population quota as provided for by Article 89(6) of the Constitution but at the same time ensuring that such a process shall –
 - (i) take into account the provisions of Article 89(7)(b) of the Constitution that requires progressive efforts and not instant demographic equality of all towards attaining the population quota in each constituency and Ward for the purposes of the first review;
 - (ii) not be subject to new definitions of cities, urban areas and sparsely populated areas or to new population figures;
 - (iii) be subject to the use of enumerated national census figures and not projected figures.

Total Population of each County

Applying the above formula ensures that even the smallest County has the required members of the County Assembly to perform its function. This approach takes cognisance of the inherent inequities in the populations of various counties and the imbalances in each constituency. This is because counties were created by the Constitution without regard to their populations. The approach therefore achieves equity of representation within the County and is therefore preferred by the IEBC. The table below presents the proposed determination of wards by IEBC based on the above approach and deviation from the quota.

This methodology results into an additional two County Assembly Wards due to mathematical fractions. The Commission proposes to alloacate the extra County Assembly Wards on the principle of highest population quota as per the County Assembly Wards.

CHAPTER SIX

PROPOSALS & WAYFORWARD

6.1 Introduction

The Independence Constitution of Kenya provided key criteria to guide the boundary delimitation process. These criteria guided all the boundary reviews that were done prior to the promulgation of the Constitution of Kenya 2010. The Current constitution in Article 89 puts in place the criteria supposed to be used in the delimitation of boundaries – from the first review and other delimitations that will follow later. Notably, the authority and criteria for delimitation of local authority electoral areas is the same as that of Constituencies.²

6.2 Methodology and criteria for boundary delimitation

In reviewing constituency and ward boundaries, the Constitution of Kenya 2010 requires the Commission to consult all interested parties.³ It is noted that in the first review of boundaries, as documented by IIBRC eight provincial visits were held with a total number of 106 public hearings where of 20,726 people attended. The objective of the public consultations was to collect views regarding to electoral and administrative boundaries. All stakeholders were requested to present to the Commission oral submissions or written submissions either as individuals or groups and the public invited to give presentations through scheduled public hearings in existing constituencies.

While recognizing the above task done by IIBRC, it is prudent to note that IEBC's role in the resolution of all issues arising from the first review will be limited to the provisions of Section 36 of IEBC Act, 2011, and Paragraph 3(2) and (3) of the Fifth Schedule of the Act. The IEBC through the presentation of the proposals herein, invites all stakeholders to present oral submissions either as individuals or groups. Further, the public is invited to give presentations through scheduled public hearings in existing constituencies.

6.3 Applicable Framework

In the first review done by IIBRC many of the submissions received offered suggestions on delimitation of both administrative and electoral boundaries. Whereas IEBC appreciates that administrative and electoral units were within the initial mandate of IIBRC, the emphasis in the

² As provided under the Local Government Act

³ Article 89(7) of the Constitution

consultations as a result of the first review will be on constitutional criterion. This will be in consideration of the criteria under Article 89 (5) of the Constitution. Thus, public submissions and petitions should be presented within three key limits;

- a) Geographical Features: For purposes of resolving issues arising from the first review focus is on patterns of human settlement; land use and road networks and land cover for communications (TV; mobile telephony). Also inclusive of equities in resource allocation, natural and water resources and national security.
- b) Community Interests: This is relating to the historical, political, economic and cultural ties existing in various parts of the country. As such areas of economic interest to the community and the existence of a favorable economic infrastructure (schools; hospitals; market centers); presence of harmonious co-existence between communities and political stability that also protects the rights of minorities and marginalized communities posit as boundary concerns.
- c) Means of Communication: Means of communication also considers roads networks, telecommunications (mobile and radio telephony) and postal and courier services.

All submissions should focus thereof on access to these services and infrastructure and the Commission in retrospect shall take into account views of the communities affected.

6.4 Work Plan

The work plan for the delimitation exercise is developed on the basis of the mandate provided under the fifth schedule to the IEBC Act 2011.

i. Collection, Analysis and presentation of data

Information and data collected having been interpreted and legally analyzed informs the delimitation exercise. This involves collection and analysis of population data based on the constitutional provisions. Literature review undertaken not only covers the relevant documents cited under the IEBC Act but also covers maps and archival data on boundaries and boundary delimitation in Kenya, including best practices.

ii. Field Visits

Public hearings provide a tool for gathering and compiling relevant information from the general public on matters of concern in delimitation. This will also offer immediate feedback on emerging issues on suggestions for boundary variations.

Field visits are organized to sensitise the general public and stakeholders on the mandate and responsibility of the IEBC and providing Kenyans and opportunity to contribute their views. These will be structured to clusters of a minimum of 6 to a maximum of 12 constituencies per public hearing based on vicinity of selected constituencies per county and conducted for a consecutive period that will be stipulated by the commission.

iii. Memorandum

Written submissions-memoranda will be presented to the IEBC by all interested parties, either individuals or groups seeking to have their views equally taken into consideration. These will be strictly based on the mandate of the IEBC and Constitutional criteria for resolution of issues arising from the first review.

iv. Analysis of data collected

Data from field visits and public hearings will be analysed against the constitutional provisions and in relation to constituency and community groupings on community interest, geographical features and means of communication. Analytical tools-ICT and GIS and qualitative methods will be used for the purposes of developing a just and considerate decision for all the electorates.

6.5 Communications to the public

The most appropriate medium for communication will be identified and employed by the Commission to reach the stakeholders and general public. And to achieve optimum results, it is expected, through voter education; that the general public will be equipped with the requisite knowledge on the process of resolving issues arising from the first review to enable them submit their views against the constitutional provisions. Stakeholder, consultation will focus on key principles in the public and private sector and the strategy may be further supplemented by interactive media briefings.
